

“Loser” by Bigbang

By: Two Former Students

Introduction

- “Loser” sung by the group Bigbang
- The song was written by a Korean-American artist and songwriter that goes by the name of Teddy. Two members of the group G-dragon and T.O.P helped write the song as well.
- The song was released on May 1, 2015
- We like the tune of the song and how catchy it sounds.
- The song sounds kind of like a slow romance song but the lyrics make it seem more depressing.

Characters

- Main character: an unknown person
- The character seems to feel full of regret, tired, and alone. The song is sung in a first person point of view.
- In the lyrics, the character seems full of regret when the character says, “ I’ve come too far. I’m coming home, I want to go back.”
- The character then says, “ I want to say goodbye. When I stop wandering at the end of this road, I hope I can close my eyes without regrets.” The character seems to be expressing his/her tiredness and how they feel about their actions.

Characters continued...

- Lastly, the character seems to feel alone and says, “Honestly, I’ve never fit into the world, I was always alone.”
- The character feels alone in the world and feels different from everyone else. The character seems to feel as if he/she could never fit in into the world.

Setting

- I can infer that the setting of the song could be in the streets. The character could be wandering around the city/neighborhood.

Plot

- The conflict in the song is if life hasn't been the best lately and the feel distant from the world and people. They have many feelings that were never expressed.
- The main character accepts his/her feelings and now after "wandering" around, the character wants to be done wandering and be able to sleep without regrets.

Theme & Mood

- The main idea of the song is that life may get really horrible and the character feels depressed constantly.
- “At some point I started to looking at the ground more than the sky, It’s hard even to breathe, I hold out my hand, But no one holds on it.”
- It relates to our lives because sometimes we may put up a tough act but are not really fine.
- When something horrible has happened and people feel down.
- It makes us feel that we should enjoy even happy moment we have because the next day, something bad could happen.
